

I care about everyone's right to education, health and water. The world needs six million more trained teachers and health care professionals. The world needs accessible clean water.

I call on world governments to fulfill their promise to achieve the Millennium Development Goals by 2015, by ensuring quality public services for all.

To make this possible, I ask Northern governments to:

- increase international aid to 0.7% of their national income;
- ensure that aid supports the development of public services in education, health and water;
- stop supporting the privatization of basic social services;
- cancel poor countries' debts.

Public services fight poverty.

One person can make a big difference. Imagine what six million can do!
